WorldPop

Several World Population Estimate maps and services will be retired and removed from service in December 2022. See the ArcGIS Blog for a list of impacted maps and services and learn about recommended alternatives, and share it with your customers. WorldPop and Esri have recently partnered to publish annual gridded population datasets covering 249 countries, territories, and dependencies for the 2000-2020 period. Explore the web maps in this portfolio to see how recently added display effects in ArcGIS Online can be applied to WorldPop's population density layer. Or access the WorldPop imagery layers in Living Atlas.

Raster Basemaps Retirement Notice

Esri will be retiring two very old raster basemaps on May 4, 2022. If you are using one of these basemaps, you should switch to the equivalent basemap in general availability. Once the basemaps are retired, they will no longer be available to use in maps and apps.

- ESRI Imagery World 2D – use World Imagery WGS84 as a replacement
- ESRI StreetMap World 2D – use World Street Map \(WGS84\) as a replacement. ArcMap users will need to use World Street Map as a replacement, but note that this basemap is in Web Mercator.

The “2D” basemaps were placed in mature support in 2016 and have not been updated since. The replacement basemaps are updated regularly and have more worldwide coverage. This blog post has more details.

Esri Product Deprecation

Network Analysis Tools in the Ready To Use Tools Gallery Deprecation

The Network Analysis tools in the Ready To Use Tools gallery have been deprecated and removed from the Ready To Use Tool gallery in ArcGIS Pro 3.0. Network analysis can be performed with an ArcGIS Enterprise or ArcGIS Online routing service in ArcGIS Pro using network analysis layers. The workflow is the same as when using a network dataset on disk. Check out the technical article for more information.

ArcGIS Enterprise support for Red Hat Enterprise Linux 7 and Derivatives Deprecation

ArcGIS Enterprise 10.9.1 will be the last release to support Red Hat Enterprise Linux 7 (RHEL7) and derivative Linux distributions including CentOS 7, Scientific Linux 7, and Oracle Linux 7.

ArcGIS Enterprise 11.0 and beyond will continue to support Red Hat Enterprise Linux 8 and Oracle Linux 8.

ArcGIS Insights Functionality Deprecation

The ArcGIS Insights 2021.3 release will be the last version to support connections to database versions: Microsoft SQL Server 2014, PostgreSQL 9.6, and SAP HANA 2.0 SPS04. The Insights 2022.1 release planned for March 2022 will not support these database versions. ArcGIS Online Update Now Available

March 22, 2022: The March 2022 release of ArcGIS Online is now available. Highlights include the new animated Flow smart mapping style, Voxel Scene Layers, and more. Users can also now organize members within the organization, as well as transfer content between organization members much easier. Additionally, with the latest release, organizations that still deploy the legacy home page who have not requested an extension will automatically be transitioned to the new home page. Other highlights include email verification and more map viewer enhancements. Share the ArcGIS Blog with users for more information.

ArcGIS Instant Apps Update Now Available

March 22, 2022: The March 2022 release of ArcGIS Instant Apps introduces new features and key updates. With the release of Exhibit out of beta, users can now design an interactive presentation of their maps. This release also introduces the capability to create native mobile apps with ArcGIS AppStudio directly from the My Apps tab. This workflow currently supports web apps that were built using Attachment Viewer, Nearby, and Zone Lookup. The landing page also now provides an interactive experience when users choose which app is best to use based on data, purpose, and workflows. Other updates include enhancements to Portfolio, Chart Viewer, Attachment Viewer, and more. Share the ArcGIS Blog with users.

ArcGIS Indoors Maps and ArcGIS Indoors Spaces

February 15, 2022: ArcGIS Indoors Maps and ArcGIS Indoors Spaces (IPS) are now available. The new licensing model for ArcGIS Indoors is now available.

Customers can now license ArcGIS Indoors through two organizational capabilities:

1. ArcGIS Indoors Maps, which provides tools and apps for indoor mapping and wayfinding.
2. ArcGIS Indoors Spaces, which provides tools and apps for space management and workspace reservations.

ArcGIS Indoors Maps and ArcGIS Indoors Spaces are each offered at a flat annual subscription regardless of the size of the indoor facility and they can be added to an existing Org.

With the release of ArcGIS Indoors Maps and ArcGIS Indoors Spaces, ArcGIS Indoors will no longer be offered by square feet (or square meters) except for special programs.

ArcGIS Imagery News

ArcGIS Image for ArcGIS Online

March 22, 2022: ArcGIS Image for ArcGIS Online

Highlights -

- Imagery layers or analysis results can now be exported into tile packages for offline use on mobile devices.
- When publishing a Tiled imagery layer, the WMTS capability is now automatically enabled if the compression method is set as JPEG and the spatial reference has an EPSG code.
- If you have data on a cloud store, you can now create an ACS file to point to your data, create a mosaic dataset, and publish that mosaic dataset as an imagery layer to ArcGIS Online using the create hosted imagery wizard. The images will be copied from the cloud store to ArcGIS Online as part of the publishing process.
- Several bug fixes and minor improvements have gone into this release as well.

ArcGIS Image Dedicated

February 11, 2022: ArcGIS Image Dedicated is now available to quote and order through Salesforce, Inside Sales, and Customer Service.

ArcGIS Image Dedicated brings raster analytics and streaming capabilities directly to imagery in your Amazon Web Services or Microsoft Azure cloud environment. With this service, Esri will manage dedicated servers next to your imagery so you can reduce egress costs and enable scalability.
